Kerry Donoghue Featured in “Women Building High?Trust Workplaces”

We’re proud to share that Kerry Donoghue, Aptia’s Chief Operating Officer, has been featured in the Women Building High?Trust Workplaces leadership series by Qualee — a collection of conversations with women leaders shaping more human?centered, trust?driven workplace cultures.

In her interview, Kerry highlights the power of clarity, communication, and follow?through in creating environments where people feel genuinely supported and able to do their best work. She emphasizes that trust is built in the everyday moments, especially when leaders explain the “why” behind decisions, create space for honest dialogue, and take visible action on feedback.

Kerry also shares practical advice for the next generation of women leaders: take bold professional risks, trust your perspective and stay true to the core beliefs that guide you.

Her perspective reflects the values we strive for at Aptia — transparency, accountability, and empowering people to grow with confidence.
